

The start of a great relationship.

*The Honourable
Clyde K. Wells, QC*

Cox & Palmer is pleased to announce that the Honourable Clyde K. Wells, QC, has joined the St. John's office as Counsel.

Clyde has had an extensive legal and political career. A graduate of Dalhousie Law School, Clyde built a thriving legal practice before serving as the fifth Premier of Newfoundland and Labrador from 1989-1996.

Upon his departure from politics, Clyde joined one of our firm's predecessor firms and practiced with us for two and a half years prior to his appointment as a justice of the Supreme Court of Newfoundland and Labrador (Court of Appeal). He was appointed Chief Justice of the province in 1999, holding the position for 10 years before deciding to step down. Clyde remained as a supernumerary justice of the appellate court until his full retirement from the bench last November.

In his new role as Counsel, Clyde's availability and advice will be a tremendous asset, and will further enhance our accomplished team, practice, and client-service.

Clyde joins an Atlantic Canadian team of lawyers who are leaders in their professions and in their communities.

The difference is a great relationship.
